Privacy Policy

The Society for Astronomical Sciences (SAS) is committed to the value of privacy. As you use our websites, you may be prompted to enter information when you:

- Create a user name and password
- Purchase a membership or registration

The data collected online from an SAS user is voluntary, although some services are only accessible by registering user details. Information collected may include your name, email address, street address, society membership, or other related demographic information. Except as described in this Privacy Policy, the SAS will endeavor to keep your information confidential. We focus on using the information as part of the SAS's service to you and its mission to advance and diffuse the knowledge of Astronomy.

How Collected Information Is Used

The primary purpose of gathering information is to allow the SAS to link a name and contact information to a user ID. The SAS has a policy to use its customer lists only for the delivery of information deemed of potential relevance or interest to members of the Astronomical community.

How We Work to Keep Information Secure

The SAS take precautions to protect your information both online and offline. When a registration/order form on an SAS-associated site asks for sensitive information (such as a credit-card number), we use modern, strong encryption methods to protect it. We will only make available the minimal amount of personal information necessary to leadership, members, and meeting attendees.

Links

The SAS site contains links to other sites, and other sites have links to the SAS. Please be aware that the SAS is not responsible for the privacy practices (or other practices, goods, services, or content) of other sites. We encourage you to be aware when you leave our site and to read the privacy statements of each website that collects personally identifiable information. This privacy statement applies solely to information collected by the SAS.

Notification of Changes

If we make material changes to our privacy policy, these changes will be posted to our privacy policy page. You should review this page regularly for updates.
